

CSS HW

Description:

Develop a Tribute Page for your favorite person using HTML and CSS! It can be anyone: someone from history, a certain celebrity, or even an anime/game character.

Steps:

Create a simple tribute page with just html. It should look something like this:

Slavoj Žižek

The Slovenian Philosopher

Image of the philosopher.

Here's a time line of Žižek's life:

- Early life - born in Ljubljana, SR Slovenia, Yugoslavia, into a middle-class family.
- Education - In 1967, during an era of liberalization in Titoist Yugoslavia, Žižek enrolled at the University of Ljubljana and studied philosophy and sociology. He had already begun reading French structuralists prior to entering university, and in 1967 he published the first translation of a text by Jacques Derrida into Slovenian. Žižek frequented the circles of dissident intellectuals, including the Heideggerian philosophers Tine Hribar and Ivo Urbančič, and published articles in alternative magazines, such as Praxis, Tribuna and Problemi, which he also edited. In 1971 he accepted a job as an assistant researcher with the promise of tenure, but was dismissed after his Master's thesis was denounced by the authorities as being "non-Marxist". He graduated from the University of Ljubljana in 1981 with a Doctor of Arts in Philosophy for his dissertation entitled The Theoretical and Practical Relevance of French Structuralism. He spent the next few years undertaking national service in the Yugoslav army in Karlovac.
- Career - During the 1980s, Žižek edited and translated Jacques Lacan, Sigmund Freud, and Louis Althusser. He used Jacques Lacan's work to interpret Hegelian and Marxist philosophy.
- Politics - In 2016, during a conversation with Gary Younge at a Guardian Live event, Žižek endorsed Donald Trump for the US presidency in the 2016 election. He described Trump as a paradox, basically a centrist liberal in most of his positions, desperately trying to mask this by dirty jokes and stupidities. In an opinion piece, published e.g. in Die Zeit, he described the then frontrunner candidate Hillary Clinton as the much less suitable alternative. In an interview with the BBC, Žižek did however state that he thought Trump was "horrible" and his support would have been based on an attempt to encourage the Democratic Party to return to more leftist ideals.
- Impact - His body of writing spans dense theoretical polemics, academic tomes, and accessible introductory books; in addition, he has taken part in various film projects, including two documentary collaborations with director Sophie Fiennes, The Pervert's Guide to Cinema (2006) and The Pervert's Guide to Ideology (2012). His work has impacted both academic and widespread public audiences (see for example his commentary in the 2003 Abercrombie and Fitch Quarterly). Hundreds of academics have addressed aspects of Žižek's work in professional papers, and in 2007, the International Journal of Žižek Studies was established for the discussion of his work.

"A guy was sent from East Germany to work in Siberia. He knew his mail would be read by censors, so he told his friends: "Let's establish a code. If a letter you get from me is written in blue ink, it is true what I say. If it is written in red ink, it is false." After a month, his friends get the first letter. Everything is in blue. It says, this letter: "Everything is wonderful here. Stores are full of good food. Movie theatres show good films from the west. Apartments are large and luxurious. The only thing you cannot buy is red ink."

-- Žižek's jokes

If you have time, you should read more about this guy on his Wikipedia entry.

Please use all of the following HTML tags:

Strong,
unordered list,
link (for css),
main (with id=""main),
img,
figure (with id="img-div"),
figcaption,
section (with id=""tribute-info),
blockquote,
div,
p,
etc.

Step 2:

Adding some css to your page.

1. Set a base font of size 10px for the html tag.
2. Set the following for your body tag:
 1. font-family: whatever you prefer
 2. font-size: 1.6rem (or 16px);
 3. line-height: 1.5;
 4. text-align: center;
 5. color: whatever you prefer
 6. margin: 0;
3. Set a font size for your h1 tag, set the bottom margin to 0;
4. Set the anchor tag's color to #477ca7;
5. Set the visited anchor tag's color to #74638f;
6. Select the element with the id=""main"" and set the following:
 1. Top margin: 30px
 2. Left/right margin: 8px;
 3. padding: 15px;
 4. border-radius: 5px;
 5. background: #eee;
7. Select the element with the id=""img-div"" and set the following:
 1. background: white;
 2. padding: 10px;
 3. margin: 0;
8. Set the following for the unordered list:
 1. max-width: 550px;
 2. margin: 0 auto 50px auto; (auto means auto adjustments)
 3. text-align: left;
 4. line-height: 1.6;
9. Set the top margin of list to 16px, left and right margin to 0;

10. For block quote element, set the font to be italic and text aligned to the left.
Whew! That's a lot of stuff.
Now that you're done, your page should look like this:

Slavoj Žižek

The Slovenian Philosopher

Image of the philosopher.

Here's a time line of Žižek's life:

- Early life - born in Ljubljana, SR Slovenia, Yugoslavia, into a middle-class family.
- Education - In 1967, during an era of liberalization in Titoist Yugoslavia, Žižek enrolled at the University of Ljubljana and studied philosophy and sociology. He had already begun reading French structuralists prior to entering university, and in 1967 he published the first translation of a text by Jacques Derrida into Slovenian. Žižek frequented the circles of dissident intellectuals, including the Heideggerian philosophers Tine Hribar and Ivo Urbančič, and published articles in alternative magazines, such as Praxis, Tribuna and Problemi, which he also edited. In 1971 he accepted a job as an assistant researcher with the promise of tenure, but was dismissed after his Master's thesis was denounced by the authorities as being "non-Marxist". He graduated from the University of Ljubljana in 1981 with a Doctor of Arts in Philosophy for his dissertation entitled The Theoretical and Practical Relevance of French Structuralism. He spent the next few years undertaking national service in the Yugoslav army in Karlovac.
- Career - During the 1980s, Žižek edited and translated Jacques Lacan, Sigmund Freud, and Louis Althusser. He used Jacques Lacan's work to interpret Hegelian and Marxist philosophy.
- Politics - In 2016, during a conversation with Gary Younge at a Guardian Live event, Žižek endorsed Donald Trump for the US presidency in the 2016 election. He described Trump as a paradox, basically a centrist liberal in most of his positions, desperately trying to mask this by dirty jokes and stupidities. In an opinion piece, published e.g. in Die Zeit, he described the then frontrunner candidate Hillary Clinton as the much less suitable alternative. In an interview with the BBC, Žižek did however state that he thought Trump was "horrible" and his support would have been based on an attempt to encourage the Democratic Party to return to more leftist ideals.
- Impact - His body of writing spans dense theoretical polemics, academic tomes, and accessible introductory books; in addition, he has taken part in various film projects, including two documentary collaborations with director Sophie Fiennes, The Pervert's Guide to Cinema (2006) and The Pervert's Guide to Ideology (2012). His work has impacted both academic and widespread public audiences (see for example his commentary in the 2003 Abercrombie and Fitch Quarterly).
Hundreds of academics have addressed aspects of Žižek's work in professional papers, and in 2007, the International Journal of Žižek Studies was established for the discussion of his work.

"A guy was sent from East Germany to work in Siberia. He knew his mail would be read by censors, so he told his friends: 'Let's establish a code. If a letter you be read by censors, so he told his friends. Let's establish a code. If a letter you get from me is written in blue ink, it is true what I say. If it is written in red ink, it is false." After a month, his friends get the first letter. Everything is in blue. It says, this letter: "Everything is wonderful here. Stores are full of good food. Movie theatres show good films from the west. Apartments are large and luxurious. The only thing you cannot buy is red ink."

-- Žižek's jokes

If you have time, you should read more about this guy on his Wikipedia entry.